

Who Dialogues?

(and when and where and how?)

A gem for seeing dialogue in action.

For classrooms, faculty, committees, and community organizations where there is an interest
in studying or engaging in dialogue.

The term “dialogue” has a nice ring to it, but what does it mean exactly? What are the ingredients that turn an ordinary conversation into a dialogue? How can dialogue help to bring together people who think they have nothing in common?

Network for Peace through Dialogue’s new 51-page book Who Dialogues? (and when and where and how?) provides a solid introduction to the subject through the personal stories of 10 practitioners who use dialogue in their work. Among the variety of uses these practitioners describe are: laying the groundwork for conflict resolution, designing a large UN conference, helping to heal the wounds of the Holocaust, teaching in a university, working with youth and conducting dialogue online.

Only $5 per book. Shipping and handling charges vary from $4 for a single copy to $8 for 10+.

Send orders along with check to:

Network for Peace through Dialogue

240 E. 93d St. #3H

New York, NY 10128 Call 212-426-5818 for more information.